Recruit with Smith

Queen’s Master of Finance (MFin) is a 12-month program that allows students to earn a world-class degree while they continue to work in downtown Toronto.

The program provides students a deeper and broader understanding of finance, while emphasizing business acumen, decision-making, communication and leadership skills.

Why Queen’s MFin?

• Experienced and diversified talent: Our students offer an average of 6 years work experience across diverse functions including banking, asset management, risk, credit, insurance and real estate.

• Chartered Financial Analyst (CFA) credentials: More than 70% of students entering the program have completed CFA Level 1 or higher. Smith is a proud partner of the CFA Institute and the Chartered Alternative Investment Analyst Association (CAIA).

• High domestic and female representation: 80% of MFin students are domestic and 34% are female, offering a diverse group that is available to start in a role today. The 20% of students who are international represent 13 nations across the world, bringing a unique global perspective to classroom discussions.

• Practical curriculum and application: Half of the MFin faculty are currently working in finance, giving students deep insights into practical applications of the concepts they are learning. Courses include advanced financial modelling, equity markets, derivatives, fixed income, artificial intelligence and finance, and portfolio management.

• Queen’s University Alternative Asset Fund (QUAAF): As the only student-run hedge fund in North America, QUAAF consists of a mix of MBA and MFin students supported by an advisory committee of industry professionals.
